Notes

1) 洗一洗, 擦一擦, 刷一刷

Chinese often repeats the verb like this. Verb — verb. It gives the sentence a lighter feel.

2) 有的… 有的

This is a way of linking actions. Some (people) washed the floorboards, some (people) wiped the table, some wiped the windows.

3) The character o is used in a few different ways. Here it shows a change of state. Previously the windows were dirty - now they are shiny 亮了. Previously the table was not clean and the floorboards looked old. Now the table is clean 乾淨了 and the floor looks new 變新了。

Little White Rabbit does the Chinese New Year Spring Cleaning

Little White Rabbit loves cleanliness, before Chinese New Year, (he) does a big spring clean at home together with Rabbit Father and Rabbit Mother.

They do some washing, scrubbing, wiping. The whole family does the Big Spring Clean. Someone washes the floors, someone wipes the table, someone wipes the windows. The windows are shiny, the table is clean and the floorboards have become like new.

It will soon be Chinese New Year, 灶神 the Kitchen God comes to visit and feels that the room has been swept clean, he feels satisfied and he asks the Jade Emperor to give Little White Rabbit's family a big box of vegetables.

Little White Rabbit receives the Jade Emperor's present, he feels very happy, he eats the vegetables with his father and mother, chats and happily enjoys the new year.
